Hoyle.
Hoyle was not really the inventor of whist, although often so stated to be, but he was the first who introduced scientific whist to the public. A recent authority says that very little is known of Hoyle's personal history except that he was a barrister by profession and held the post of registrar of the prerogative in Ireland. He was born in 1670 and died in Cavendish square in 1767 at the advanced age of ninety-seven years. He received the sum of £1,600 from his publisher for his treatise on whist, which ran through five editions in one year and was extensively pirated. Hoyle is said to have given lessons in whist at a guinea a lesson. One of his great points was the calculation of probabilities at various stages of the rubber. This at first was deemed so important in guiding players that a famous mathematician used to frequent the coffee houses (the old substitute for the modern clubs) and give his opinion on the state of the odds at any stage in a game of whist in return for a small fee from the players—Glasgow Times.

Crossing the Ocean.
The following bits of conversation may be heard several thousand times each day:
"I think those people down in the steerage have a much better time than we do. But don't they look just like so many animals?"
"Don't those clouds over there look just like land?"
"Somebody said we aren't far from an iceberg, but I don't know whether it's so or not. You hear so many false reports on shipboard."
"Have you met the captain yet? I hope you didn't ask him any foolish questions, poor man!"
"No, I haven't seen a whale yet, but there were lots of porpoises around the ship today."
"Who is that man? I haven't seen him before. He must have come on board during the night." (Always funny.)

As Arranged For Older Children.
Miss Mary was the possessor of a diminutive and immature specimen of the Olds, a wool bearing and rumbling quadruped, whose flesh is highly esteemed by persons to whose gustatory organs its favor is agreeable. The shaggy and agglomerated filaments constituting its collective capacity its natural outer covering, integument or garment presented to the vision a surface absolutely etiolated and abridged and rivaling in immaculateness the lustrous mantle of crystallized vapor that commonly characterizes the winter landscape.

And to whatsoever locality, contiguous or remote, whether Mary's vagrant fancy, the call of duty or perchance the parental mandate impelled her, when not otherwise engaged, to break herself, this juvenescent representative of the genus Olds, with a fidelity remarkable in one so immature and inexperienced, could be counted upon with absolute and entire certainty to accompany her.—Chicago Tribune.

Fortune For Forgers.
The last person to suffer death for forgery in London was a Thomas Maynard, who was executed on Dec. 31, 1829. It was not, however, until 1822 that the death penalty for the crime was replaced by transportation, though even then an exception was made in the case of forging or altering a will. This exception was not removed from the statute book until 1837. In the days of good Queen Bess a forger of deeds was very severely dealt with. He had to stand in the pillory; his ears were cut off; his nose slit, and he was branded with hot irons. If he survived these ordeals he was doomed to imprisonment for the rest of his days, and everything he possessed in the world was forfeited to the crown. Surely death would have been far more merciful.

Waifs Who Became Famous.
The list of waifs who have become famous, says the Delineator, is a long one. It includes Sir Henry Stanley, Queen Catherine the Good, Alexander Hamilton, Rosa Bonheur, Edgar Allan Poe, Rachel, Leonardo da Vinci and dates back as far as Moses. All these were homeless children—children who left to their fate would undoubtedly have drifted into evil ways. Instead they have lived to add glory to their names and have contributed to the knowledge of the world at large through the fruits of their genius.

Smartness.
Do not be "smart." Whenever you see any of your mates showing signs of "smartness" in his work, his talk or his play take him by the hand, or both hands, or by the back of the neck, if necessary, and lovingly, playfully, but firmly, lead him to a knowledge of higher and more interesting things. In these words of Mr. Kipling is presented the gospel of real life, of common sense and of universal experience.—New York Outlook.

Disease and Remedies.
It is almost a truism among physicians that the intractability of a disease may be measured by the number of "infallible" remedies for it which from time to time have been recommended.—London Times.

Sociologist Defined.
"Uncle Henry, what is a sociologist?"
"A sociologist, my boy, is a person who can inspect a garbage can and find enough material in it for a long lecture on the needs of society."—Chicago Tribune.

Kodol is the best known preparation that is offered to the people today for dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble. Kodol digests all food. It is pleasant to take. It is sold here by W. F. Creighton & Co.

Coming to an Understanding.
In the amiable way of villagers they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to find the yoke of Hymen a burden.
"Tis all along of these hasty marriages," opined one caustic old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other. They'd nobbut knowned each other for a matter of seven year."

"Well, that seems long enough," said an interested lady listener.
"Long eno! Bah! Ye're wrong! When a body's courtin' he canna be too careful. Why, my courtship lasted a matter of nineteen year!"

"You certainly were careful," agreed the lady listener. "And did you find your plan successful when you married?"

"Ye jump to conclusions," said the old man impatiently. "I understood her then, so I didna marry her!"—St. James' Gazette.

Poor Comfort.
Apropos of the pretensions of those who might be counted as in society, Mrs. Bloomfield Moore in her book on "Sensible Etiquette" tells the following story:

A snobbish young man and his sister after their return home from an evening party were criticising the company, quite unaware that their sensible old uncle was lying awake in his chamber and could hear every word from where they stood in the corridor.
"Why, even the Grindens were there, and you know their father was a grocer. I was never in such a mixed company," said the sister.
"And we will never be again if I can help it," answered the brother.
The uncle called out: "Children, what do you think your grandfather was? He was a bootmaker, and some people say not a very honest one either. Now go to bed."

Cramp Rings.
Formerly it was customary for kings of England on Good Friday to hallow certain rings, the wearing of which prevented cramp or epilepsy. They were made from the metal of decayed collars and consecrated with an elaborate ceremony, some details of which are still preserved. They were "highly recommended by the medical profession" about 1557, for Andrew Boorde in his "Brevery of Health" speaking of cramp says, "The kynge's majestie bath a great helpe in this matter in hallowing cramp rings with out money or petition." Occasionally cramp rings played a persuasive part in diplomacy. Lord Berners, our ambassador at the court of Charles V. wrote in 1568 "to my lord cardinal's grace" for some "cramp rings," with trust to "bestow them well, by God's grace."—Westminster Gazette.

Persian Burials.
In Persia two sticks a foot long are placed in the coffin to prop up the arms of the corpse when it rises from the grave and is being questioned by the angel Gabriel. After it has satisfied the angel that it is the body of a true Mussulman it will receive strength to stand alone. A glance from a dog is necessary to drive away the spirit of delirium, and for this purpose a street cur is brought into the room of death and its eyes laid on the corpse by a tempting bit of bread laid on the still breast.

Restlessness.
Mere restlessness is not a matter for which physicians are often consulted. It is on the face of it an unimportant malady, but when it exists in sufficient intensity to form the subject of complaint and to induce the sufferer to seek advice it is usually found to be the superficial indication of a grave underlying condition.—Hospital.
